SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. In 1950 representatives of the Ministry of Trade of Eastern Germany in China concluded an agreement for the erection of three hydrogenation plants in China with the following specifications:
 - a. Coal will be the raw material used.
 - b. Each plant will produce annually 150,000 tons of aviation gasoline.
 - c. Each plant will cost DM 80 million.
 - d. All mechanical parts will be delivered in September 1951.
2. This agreement was revised in September 1951 and the following changes made, which were agreed to by Chinese experts who inspected the Bohlen Plant:
 - a. Each plant will cost DM 300 million.
 - b. Production will start at the plants five years after the order for them has been placed.
3. Chinese coal is being shipped to Germany for analysis at Bohlen.¹ When tests are completed, the final plans for the plants will be submitted, and China will order them.
